

From: Macaluso, Nora <nmacaluso@bna.com>
Sent: Monday, October 19, 2015 5:53 PM
To: Wurfel, Brad (DEQ)
Subject: quick question on flint lead

Importance: High

Sorry for the lateness of this question, but it just came up:

Dan Wyant says staff followed protocol for testing of a smaller city. Does that explain why the state tests didn't find a lead problem at first? And if the tests had been done for a city of Flint's size, it would have been flagged sooner? This isn't clear from the statement or from any of those e-mails.

Thanks...

[illegible]

Nora Macaluso
Staff Correspondent

Bloomberg BNA

Direct/Mobile PPI
mmacaluso@bna.com