Jen and Brad,

There is a story posted in the Washington Post this morning regarding Flint water that appears to not include any information about the state governments role in helping the city with its struggles.

I've been in contact with the reporter to express our displeasure and she is open to adding to the story. I'm handling the response from our office about the task force and action plan.

Brad, I want to stay looking forward. Can you tell her about the school testing and results so far, that show the challenges seem to be limited to fixtures?

Jen, can you direct her to the page where you are posting the results and explain the testing and filter distribution?

I'll send the reporter's contact information.

Dave
