OK, FYI, attached are the final documents that were posted on our website today by Jeff Ellsworth. I believe they will be referenced in the press conference tomorrow. Yes, Gov is holding a big press conference tomorrow, watch your email, stay tuned, (online TV?). I think it is in Flint, but don't quote me on that.

Angela talked in a meeting today about our toolkit and plans to introduce it later this month since this pesky lead problem existed before and continues to exist both in Flint and statewide, great that there will be continued attention. These attached documents will be kind of a preview.

Some thank you's -

Emily, many thanks for the last minute speedy work on the breastfeeding document, and just plain making the rest of the materials look great, and set all of us (CLPPP and MDHHS) for a big push later this month!

Karen, thank you for finding that research that made the breastfeeding document easy to create, and for tracking what is happening in Flint and keeping the day to day work going for all of the other kids.

Jess, you are a rock of stability with your headphones on, plugging away at all that data which has become so incredibly important in the Epi analysis, and in helping people to get a picture of what is happening in Flint and statewide.

Bob, you've pushed so much through in a short period of time, responding with such grace and kindness with each request, even the ornery ones. Thank you for your positive attitude and great work, the Department TRULY couldn't do it without you!!!

And Beth – you just keep laughing at me as I flit around, which is good, the humor is needed!

Thank you, everyone!

Nancy
