Agree- and the headstarts etc are definitely going to be tested. There will be lots of water and blood testing....

No I just wanted to find out about the capacity of the mi clppp. Is it adequately resourced, could it use more capacity??

I read about the recommendation to do lead testing in all schools. That's great. I would also add head start and childcare sites since we have so many more in the state now (especially head start) and they are a younger/more vulnerable population. EPA region 2 had a highlighted program called 3T's (training, testing and telling) about water lead testing in schools. Specifically targeting areas with disparities.

Michigan really could become a leader in the country with innovative and proactive lead programming, especially under your prevention-focused leadership.

Great! Ok- good- and CLPP funding would be great- but do not feel you have to represent MDHHS (our liaisons have their own connections) but the more they hear things from folks outside of DHHS is great! I will find out if our folks want to have a thing else brought up!

Friday is the meeting as of now.

Would love to build momentum to tighten loopholes in lead and copper rule and increase funding for CLPPPs.

Would love to hear what ideas your legislative staff may have, especially in regards to the MI CLPPP.

Thanks!

I hear you! Yes Siam I am having weird dreams. One question I forgot but did follow up with our communications people: what day do you see Debbie Stabenau?

Got it. Hang in there.

It's gets really messed up when you start dreaming about lead - I mentioned it to my research team, and evidently they've been having lead dreams/nightmares too. I think I worked them too hard.

Subject: Lead educational materials

Hi Hilda:

We want to make sure you have the link to our MDHHS educational materials on lead, available at www.michigan.gov/flintwater. Under resources you'll find posted: a parent handout; lead screening & testing information; and blood lead level guide for providers.

I'll be sure to be in touch as more and updated materials become available, but please reach out if you have any questions.

Thanks and best,
