

There's no rush. I'd like to set up an interview sometime in the next few weeks.

I'd like to get specific enough to address the misunderstanding people have about the river and its purity. I'd like to get a sense about how the Flint River's purity compares to other rivers in Michigan, especially those that serve as municipal water sources.

Steve

On Mon, Feb 16, 2015 at 12:52 PM, Wurfel, Brad (DEQ)

<WurfelB@michigan.gov> wrote:

I can absolutely try. How specific are you trying to get?

Sent from my iPhone

> On Feb 16, 2015, at 12:21 PM, "Stephen Carmody" <sgcarnod@umich.edu> wrote:

>

> Brad,

>

> I'm working on a story about the Flint River.

>

> It has become the focus of people in Flint upset about the quality of their tap water.

>

> I'm looking for someone with DEQ I can interview about the river and the quality of it's water.

>

> I'm interested in the river, not Flint's water treatment practices.

>

> Can you help me?

>

> Steve Carmody

> Michigan Radio