Colin has let me take a pass on the 2013 data, as it had been made public before he started looking it over. The reporter has already seen the PDF version, which has exactly the same info as the Excel version I'll provide to Jennifer.

Anything for 2014, which I won't send, is a different matter.

If you were to lay it out the way the reporter requested (by county, or by zip), would we have any cells with less than 5, such that we would need to be concerned about suppression of data? I supposed you may not be able to answer that until you look at the spreadsheet...

Since it is de-identified data, would Legal want there to be a DUA or IRB application or anything like that? I realize that there is already a report on the website, so I'm thinking no, but just checking!

Jennifer,

This reporter first called, then suggested an email. Please advise.

Thanks,
 Bob

Hi Scott,

As I mentioned by phone, I was looking to see if I could get the "children tested for lead poisoning" 2012/2013 data that you all publish in your reports in spreadsheet rather than PDF format.

As this data does, I'd like the spreadsheet to include the number of kids younger than six, the number of children children tested, and the number of those found to have blood levels higher than 5 and 10 ug/DL, all broken down by county. If possible, I'd like it broken down by zip code.

We're taking a national look at lead and childhood lead poisoning, and I'm making similar requests to each state. My deadline is Thursday, if possible, and I am available anytime by phone or email.

Thank you very much for your assistance, and for forwarding this along.

Best,

Lisa Riordan Seville
